CEO MESSAGE

Pastor Adrian Reeves

Greetings NAAMC Conference Delegates,

Welcome to the 2025 International Missions Conference – it's a joy to have you with us! I hope these next 2 ½ days together will inspire, encourage, and challenge you to step into deeper waters of your calling. In addition to our conference speakers, workshop presenters, and army of volunteers we are joined by sponsors and exhibitors who are here to support you pursuing God's global purpose.

This year we set our eyes on a new spiritual focus and conference theme, Leading Movements. The Gospel of Kingdom causes and requires movement, and we're gathered here in Charlotte, NC to hear, sense, and welcome the Spirit's movement into our lives and nations.

A special thank you to Bishop Claude Alexander and The Park Church for hosting us and this gathering of Kingdom ambassadors. Thank you for the warm Charlotte welcome. And of course, to the best staff in missions - #teamnaamc!

I'm excited to see what God has instore for all of us and even more excited to see what we do with it. Let's Make a Move

Blessings,

MISSIONS COUNCIL

Our Mission

To give birth to missions' innovations that help fulfill the Great Commission.

Our Vision

To see African Americans and multi-ethnic churches mobilized for global missions.

PROGRAMMING

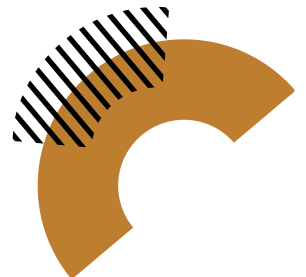

The National African American Missions Council (NAAMC) has launched its 50 State Initiative called “Neighborhoods and Nations. It is a groundbreaking effort to connect churches and ministries across the United States. This initiative seeks to create regional networking hubs that serve as vibrant centers for recruiting and equipping African American missionaries. By fostering collaboration among diverse communities, the 50 State Initiative aims to build a robust support system that provides resources, training, and opportunities for missionaries to thrive both domestically and globally. Through these regional hubs, NAAMC is not only amplifying the voices of African American missionaries but also strengthening the collective impact of missions work in underserved and unreached areas worldwide.

NAAMC established the Missions Award Program (MAP) to resource missionaries and missional efforts to advance the Kingdom of God. Since its inception in 2013, the program has raised more than $50,000 in support of first-time missionaries and missionaries returning to the field. MAP supports both short-term and long-term missionaries and missional efforts requiring financial assistance in completing their ministry assignments domestically and internationally.

The program offers two types of awards:

- Council Awards which are awarded year-round once a month and are sponsored by one of our partners
- Conference Awards are awarded at the annual NAAMC Conference during the Legacy Ceremony

The Black Missionary Café is an online community supporting the work and challenges of African American Missionaries. This is an exclusive group of African American missionaries absent of mobilizers, recruiters, or agency professionals. However, we encourage mobilizers, recruiters, and agency professionals to share this ministry with African Americans within their community.

In his iconic "I Have a Dream" speech, Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. shares, "I have a dream that one day on the red hills of Georgia the sons of former slaves and the sons of former slave owners will be able to sit down together at the table of brotherhood." NAAMC invites Christian believers across America to join us as we work to fixing the racial divide in the Church.

From Here to Everywhere is a dynamic platform designed to provide education and inspiration for and about the African American missions community. Through insightful interviews, expert panels, and thought-provoking discussions, the program addresses key topics such as cultural empowerment, local and global missions strategies, leadership development, and the unique challenges faced by African American missionaries.

The Teens and Youth in Missions department at the National African American Missions Council (NAAMC) is dedicated to equipping and inspiring the next generation of missionaries, leaders, and changemakers. Recognizing that youth are vital to the future of missions, the department provides a dynamic platform for African American teens and young adults to explore and engage in global and domestic missions. Through innovative programs, workshops, and hands-on experiences, the department fosters a deep understanding of cross-cultural missions, leadership development, and spiritual growth. This empowers participants to navigate the complexities of serving diverse communities with compassion, cultural sensitivity, and purpose.

With a shared vision to see every believer activated in Christ's mission, our diverse staff—spanning executives, directors, and advisors—embodies the heart of NAAMC: bridging cultures, building partnerships, and advancing God's Kingdom worldwide.

MEET OUR

Missionaries

NAAMC

naamcmissions.org/ourmissionaries

Our teams are made up of missionaries, volunteers, and “tent makers” ...those who, like the Apostle Paul, work full-time jobs while faithfully advancing the mission of Christ. This diverse and deeply committed team carries the heartbeat of NAAMC into churches, communities, and nations. Our missionaries serve both domestically and internationally, embodying the call to make disciples, mobilize churches, and stand in the gap where the need for African American representation in missions is greatest. Whether they are organizing trainings, leading mission trips, speaking at conferences, or offering pastoral care and mobilization support, each team member operates with an unwavering commitment to the Great Commission.

Unlike traditional roles with fixed salaries, our missionary staff raise their own financial support, just as missionaries do when sent overseas. This means that while serving here in the United States and beyond its borders, they rely on the faithful partnership of individuals, churches, and organizations who believe in the mission and are willing to sow into it. We invite you to prayerfully consider becoming a resourcing partner...whether through a one-time gift, monthly support, or annual donation. Your generosity directly empowers our missionaries to stay focused on the work God has called them to, expanding the reach of NAAMC's vision and honoring the legacy of those who paved the way.

David Bryant | Manager of Teens in Missions

David Bryant is a full-time missionary, worship leader, and educator with over 11 years of cross-cultural missions experience among unreached people groups in 14 countries, including the Middle East and East Africa. He helped pioneer a missions training and sending base, and his passion is to disciple and equip the next generation—especially African Americans—to engage in global missions with resilience and purpose. Currently pursuing a Bachelor of Science in Elementary Education at Bowie State University, David combines his love for teaching with his ministry calling, serving migrants, refugees, and those affected by modern slavery. Whether leading worship, mentoring youth, or working in the mission field, he is driven by a desire to see lives transformed through the love of Christ and for people to walk in their God-given identity and purpose (Galatians 4:5-6). He and his wife, Kayon, live in Washington, DC, as they prepare for their next long-term assignment among the nations.

The Black Missions Museum

is a groundbreaking online project dedicated to honoring the rich and often overlooked history of Black missionaries in the United States and around the world. This initiative is more than just a historical preservation effort; it is a tribute to the original Christians, known as the "People of the Way," whose roots are deeply embedded in African history.

The Black Missions Museum will serve as a vital repository of inspiration and knowledge by highlighting the historical contributions of Black missionaries, including the pioneering efforts of the first Black missionary who left U.S. shores to preach abroad. It would honor the legacy of these trailblazers and educate a global audience about the crucial role Black missionaries have played in spreading faith and fostering community across diverse regions. Learn more about this project and its amazing team of contributors at theblackmissionsmuseum.org.

We nurture kingdom connections around our four focus areas: Equipping, Resourcing, Networking, and Mobilizing. Financial resources are not a requirement for partnership with NAAMC; effective deployment of initiatives, project implementation, and program evaluations are the core of our partnership and sponsorship agreements.
